

To help insure a smooth system, I also took on significant R&D into driver monitoring via visual based skeletal modeling.

This was a prototype real-time system I created using OpenCV and MediaPipe as a backend, where I was able to calibrate and understand where the driver was looking in space.